

THE DAYSCHOOL FOR CHILDREN PRESENTS BLACK HISTORY MONTH

The “I Am Black History” Project

We believe that our children should see black history as something more than just in a movie or through celebrities, singers, and sports players. We want them to see black history in their families. Making history isn't always about doing something that the world sees. Black history also includes our family legacy and making a difference in those we love every day.

The children from Classroom A, B, and C will receive a one page sheet that they will have to fill out with some help from the family. They are to pick one family member to do their report on.

We encourage our parents to not just think about the most “successful” or “well-known” person in the family. Also consider a family member who has impacted the family with their character, hard work ethic, and love for their family. Use these moments of conversation with your children to have them see the beauty of those in their family who have contributed to who they are when it comes to Black History.

Students from Classroom A, B, and C will come to school on Thursday, February 25th dressed up as the person they have done their project on.

Our Toddler School will complete a mini Black History coloring project that we will turn into a mini children's book. Toddlers may also dress up on February 25th as a family member (if they desire).
